Unit Outline

- Day One: Pre-Assessment Quiz

- Day Two: Do Now and KWL Chart based on the Water Cycle

- Day Three: Introduction to the Water Cycle

- Day Four: Evaporation

- Day Five: Condensation

- Day Six: Precipitation

- Day Seven: Why the Water Cycle is Vital to Life on Earth

- Days Eight and Nine: Group Power Point Presentations

Please answer all of the following questions to the best of your ability. Circle the letter in front of the best answer. Underline any word from the questions that you do not understand. Good luck!

1.) What energy source is needed for the water cycle to begin?
   a. Wind
   b. Water
   c. The Sun

2.) The process of water changing from a liquid to a gas is?
   a. Condensation
   b. Evaporation
   c. Precipitation
   d. Transpiration

3.) Where is most of the water on Earth located?
   a. Rivers
b. Lakes
  c. Oceans
  d. Wetlands

4.) The process by which water vapor changes from a gas to a liquid is called:
   a. Evaporation
   b. Condensation
   c. Precipitation
   d. Infiltration

5.) What is one form of precipitation?
   a. Glacier
   b. Pond
   c. Snow
   d. Puddle

6.) What happens first in the water cycle?
   a. The water condenses and turns into clouds
   b. The water falls to Earth as rain, sleet, or snow
   c. The sun heats the water
   d. The water rises into the atmosphere as water vapor

7.) Does water's state of matter change during the water cycle?
   a. Yes
   b. No

8.) What is water vapor?
   a. Solid
   b. Liquid
   c. Gas

9.) Which of the processes of the water cycle is most important?
a. Evaporation
b. Condensation
c. Precipitation
d. They are all equally important.

10.) Did the water cycle exist when the dinosaurs lived on Earth?
   a. Yes
   b. No

11.) Is the water cycle an open system or closed system?
   a. Open System
   b. Closed System

Answer the following questions using complete sentences.
Write your answer on the paper provided.

12.) How do you think the water cycle affects Earth's weather?

13.) What would happen to our planet if the water cycle stopped?

14.) There is a blank diagram of the water cycle below:
   • Fill in the three processes of the water cycle.
   • Label the energy source that the water cycle needs in order to begin.
• Draw arrows indicating the direction in which the water cycle flows.

15.) Now that you have labeled the diagram of the water cycle, give an explanation describing the water cycle and how it functions. Make sure to include all of the processes and the water's state of matter in each process.
Grade Level: Fourth Grade – Whole Group Inclusive Classroom Setting

Subject: Science

Essential Question:
- What is the water cycle and why is it important?

Objectives:
- As a result of this lesson students will be able to:
  - Give an accurate and detailed description of the water cycle.
  - Define the water cycle and the processes that accompany it:
    - Evaporation
    - Condensation
    - Precipitation
  - Understand that water changes into different forms of matter at different stages of the water cycle.
  - Understand that the water cycle is a closed system.
  - Demonstrate their understanding of the importance of the water cycle to planet earth.
  - Acquire an understanding of how weather affects the water cycle.

Evidence that Students have Successfully Met Objectives:
- Students’ successful and accurate completion of both assessments given:
  - Power Point Presentation
  - Tiered Extension Activity for Independent Assessment

New York State Standards:

Mathematics, Science, and Technology

Standard 1: Analysis, Inquiry, and Design

Students will use mathematical analysis, scientific inquiry, and engineering designs, as appropriate, to pose questions, seek answers, and develop solutions.

Performance Indicators:
- Use simple logical reasoning to develop conclusions, recognizing that patterns and relationships present in the environment assist them in reaching these conclusions.
Ask "why" questions in attempts to seek greater understanding concerning objects and events they have observed and heard about.

Question the explanations they hear from others and read about, seeking clarification and comparing them with their own observations and understandings.

Develop relationships among observations to construct descriptions of objects and events and to form their own tentative explanations of what they have observed.

Describe objects, imaginary or real, that might be modeled or made differently and suggest ways in which the objects can be changed, fixed, or improved.

Standard 2: Information Systems

Students will access, generate, process, and transfer information using appropriate technologies.

Performance Indicators:

- Access needed information from printed media, electronic data bases, and community resources
- Demonstrate ability to evaluate information either normally or critically.

Standard 3: Mathematics

Students will understand mathematics and become mathematically confident by communicating and reasoning mathematically, by applying mathematics in real-world settings, and by solving problems through the integrated study of number systems, geometry, algebra, data analysis, probability, and trigonometry.

Performance Indicators:

- Discover patterns in nature, art, music, and literature

Standard 4: Science

Students will understand and apply scientific concepts, principles, and theories pertaining to the physical setting and living environment and recognize the historical development of ideas in science.

Performance Indicators:

- Describe patterns of daily, monthly, and seasonal changes in their environment
- Describe the relationships among air, water, and land on Earth
- Describe chemical and physical changes, including changes in states of matter
- Describe the relationship of the sun as an energy source for living and nonliving cycles)
- Describe the life processes common to all living things
- Identify ways in which humans have changed their environment and the effects of those changes
Standard 6: Interconnectedness: Common Themes

Students will understand the relationships and common themes that connect mathematics, science, and technology and apply the themes to these and other areas of learning.

Performance Indicators:

- Use different types of models, such as graphs, sketches, diagrams, and maps, to represent various aspects of the real world
- Discover that a model of something is different from the real thing but can be used to study the real thing

Standard 7: Interdisciplinary Problem Solving

Students will apply the knowledge and thinking skills of mathematics, science, and technology to address real-life problems and make informed decisions.

Performance Indicators:

- Work effectively—Contributing to the work of a brainstorming group, laboratory partnership, cooperative learning group, or project team; planning procedures; identify and managing responsibilities of team members; and staying on task, whether working alone or as part of a group

Materials for Lesson:
- Computers
- Bill Nye the Science Guy: The Water Cycle Video
- Projector
- Screen
- Glass of water
- Desk
- Pencil/Pen
- Pre-Assessment quiz
- PowerPoint Presentations Assignment Sheet
- Tiered Activities Assignment Sheets

Lesson Prep:

- Prior to this lesson, students were introduced to the following topics:
  - States of Matter
  - Properties of Water
  - Water as a Necessity to Human Life
  - Human Impact on Water
  - The Sun as an Energy Source for Life on Earth

- Students will be divided into groups by ability:
  - Remedial Group – Wet Wombats
  - Average Group – Puddle Panthers
Time Allotted for Lesson:

- 3 Non-Consecutive Days:
  - Day One – Lesson and students beginning to work on PowerPoint presentations in their groups - 60 minutes
  - Day Two – Presentation of PowerPoint projects and teacher introduction of the options students have for their individual assessments (tiered activities) – 60 minutes
  - Day Three – Presentation of individual assessment projects and lesson closure – 45 minutes

Hook:

- The day before beginning this lesson, the teacher will have the students partake in a short play on the water cycle based on a Readers’ Theater Script (see attached):
  - Each student will be assigned a part in the play.
  - The play is the journey of a water droplet through the water cycle
- The day of the lesson, the teacher will show students a twenty-five minute Bill Nye the Science Guy video that explains the water cycle.

  !Bill Nye the Science Guy

- By taking part in the play and watching and listening to the video, students will receive a well rounded summary of what they have been learning throughout the unit on the water cycle in a way that appeals to multiple senses.
  - This lesson takes place on the eighth day of the unit, so the goal of these “hook” activities is to bring together all of the information the students have previously learned and tie it all together.
- A period of time will be allotted for student questions after these activities so clarity on any confusing concepts can be reached.

Lesson Plan Sequence:

Day One:
• As noted above, students will watch a Bill Nye the Science Guy video based on the water cycle.
  o As previously stated, this video will provide a complete summary of the information students have been learning about since the beginning of the water cycle unit.
  o This video will also act as motivation for the day’s lesson.
• The teacher will then explain the class activity for the day:
  o Group PowerPoint Presentations:
    ▪ See following page for explanation of PowerPoint project.

Create a PowerPoint Presentation

Groups by Ability:
  o Rain Rangers – High Group
  o Puddle Panthers – Average Group
  o Wet Wombats – Remedial Group

Assignment:
  • Create a visual PowerPoint presentation that will show the water cycle and its importance to different aspects of life on Earth.

Requirements for All Groups:
  • All groups will be required to include the following information in their presentations:
    o Definition of the water cycle.
    o A definition for each of the three processes that take place during the water cycle, accompanied by a picture for each process.
    o A step-by-step explanation of how Earth’s water is constantly being recycled.
      ▪ Include in this explanation all three processes that take place and the changes in the water’s state of matter that take place throughout the processes.
      ▪ Be sure to include what source of energy begins this process and in which process the water cycle begins.
      ▪ Use a visual diagram of the water cycle to enhance your explanation.
    o Find an answer to the question, “Is the water cycle an open or closed system?” and explain your answer in your presentation.

Differentiated Requirements for Each Ability Level:
NOTE: THE TIERED CHOICES FOR EACH ABILITY LEVEL WILL PRESENT THEMSELVES IN THE INDEPENDENT ASSESSMENT THAT FOLLOWS THIS CLASS ACTIVITY.
  • In addition to the requirements for all groups, each group will include the additional information in their presentations.
    o Wet Wombats:
- Explain how weather affects the water cycle.
  - Puddle Panthers:
    - Explain how weather affects the water cycle.
    - Describe the distribution and availability of water on earth.
  - Rain Rangers:
    - Explain how weather affects the water cycle.
    - Describe the distribution and availability of water on earth.
    - Describe the relationship between water and humans.
- Groups will be given one to two days to complete these presentations and will then present their final presentations to the class.

Day Two:

Tiered Activities for Individual Assessment (to be assigned the day PowerPoint presentations end):
- Once all of the PowerPoint presentations have ended, the teacher will introduce the students to their individual assessment task which will be in the form of a tiered extension activity.
  - The same three ability levels (high, average, low) that were designed for the PowerPoint activity will be used for the individual assessment as well.
    - For example, If Johnny was in the Wet Wombats group (the remedial group) for the PowerPoint activity then Johnny will choose from one of the four tiered activities specifically made for the remedial level.
  - Each ability level will be given four choices for their individual assessment task.
- Students will be required to present their tiered extension activity in the format of one of the following samples:
  - Writing Sample
  - Art Sample
  - Song/Musical Sample
  - Board Game Sample
- Students will be given an ample amount of time to complete their individual assessments.
- Please see following page for Tiered Activity Chart.
Each student will choose one activity for their ability level and complete it.

<td>Writing</td>
<td>Write, design, and perform a play intended to show elementary school students what the water cycle is and why it is important to know about the water cycle. Be sure to include the important components of the water cycle we have been learning about. Give a definition of the water cycle, include the processes, and give an in depth explanation of the cycle.</td>
<td>You are a tiny drop of water. Develop an essay that tells about your life and how it changes as you pass through the water cycle. Be sure to include the important components of the water cycle we have been learning about and the different states of matter water goes through as a result of the cycle. Your essay should be five paragraphs long.</td>
<td>Read the article entitled “Acid Rain and the Water Cycle”. After reading, write an informative essay about the “glitch” in the water cycle that causes acid rain. How can acid rain be prevented? Use the library to find books on the topic or search the internet.</td>

Art

Make a storybook based on the journey of a water droplet. Use no more than one sentence per page. Tell your story mainly through illustrations. Since your story will be mainly made up of pictures make sure that each picture is very detailed (similar to how an author would make a sentence descriptive). Be sure to use key vocabulary from the unit on the water cycle.

Make a cartoon storyboard based on the water cycle. Choose a main character to venture through the water cycle. Present a problem to the main character and come up with a way to solve it by the end of the cartoon. Include pictures and captions. In addition to the storyboard, pretend your cartoon is being published in the newspaper. Write a three paragraph article to go along you’re your cartoon explaining why the water cycle is an important part of people’s everyday lives. Detail, correct word and concept use is key.

Look at the example of the family tree provided. Using this as a reference, invent a design for a family tree that will show the family history of a water droplet. Name the water droplet. Who are his or her parents? Where are they from? How did they get there? Does the droplet have siblings? Grandparents? Aunts and Uncles? Fill in the family tree for this droplet that exhibits a detailed family history explaining where the family started and how the droplet came to be.

| Song/Musical                                                                                                                                  | This week we have been learning about the water cycle. Research another cycle that is present on our planet (Nitrogen cycle, rock cycle, etc). Create a song based on the tune “Yankee Doodle”. Be sure to tell your listeners what the cycle is, how it works, what its purpose is, and the key components that are involved in the cycle. Include a cover page with the name of your song. Be creative! | Create a song about the water cycle taking place on another planet in our solar system. Do research! Think about the weather on this planet. What would be the energy source for the water cycle? What role would gravity play? How would the processes be different on this planet? Put this information into a song that you can share with the class. Include a cover page with the name of your song. Be creative! |

--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------
Create a matching game based on the water cycle. Include terms from the whole unit, their definitions, and pictures. Be sure to include all vocabulary for the water cycle. Include directions for the participants playing your game, along with a support sheet for the players to refer back to in order to see if they are matching the terms, definitions, and pictures correctly.

Create a “Who Wants to be a Millionaire” game plan. The first question should start at $100,000 the last question should be worth $1,000,000 (Total of 10 questions). Each question should have three choices. You need to provide the player of the game with life lines that will provide guidance throughout the game. All questions need to pertain to the information we have been learning about the water cycle in class. Include directions for your game and have an answer key made.

Create a “Jeopardy - like” game chart. You can set up a chart of 3 rows and 5 columns, with one of the slots being a “daily-double.” Each slot in the chart should have a monetary value. The questions should correspond to either a definition of a vocabulary word from the water cycle or questions about the processes of the water cycle, how the water cycle works, and how the water cycle affects Earth. Include directions for your game, and have an answer sheet made.

Day Three:

- Once the tiered activities are handed in, the students will have a science gallery in their classroom that will allow other fourth grade students to view student work and hear student explanations of their project choice.

- Lesson Closure:
  - Do Now:
    - The teacher will place a glass of water on a desk for students to observe when they walk into the classroom.
    - After taking a few minutes to observe the glass of water, the students will sit at their desks and respond to the writing prompt on the board in their science journals.
    - Writing Prompt: Is this the same water the dinosaurs drank? Explain why or why not.
    - Students must use the information they have received from creating their PowerPoint presentations and tiered activities to write an educated and knowledgeable response to this question
  - After ten minutes of writing, the teacher will initiate a class discussion about the writing prompt, wrapping up what has been learned throughout the course of the unit.
Because each group and each student will be working on its own schedule, there will be times when one group finished early while another needs more time to accomplish its task. These activities are designed to give students an activity to do that is both fun and informative.

- Anchor Activity #1: Students will use a website designed by NASA, in which students follow the adventure of Droplet, the water molecule, as he enters the great water cycle. Students’ task as they play this game is to get Droplet safely through the forest, into the river, and out to sea so that the sun can warm him once again and help him get back to the clouds. Many obstacles lurk in the corners of this journey!
  - http://kids.earth.nasa.gov/droplet.html

- Anchor Activity #2: A corner of the room will be named “The Water Hole”. In this special place, there will be a vast array of reading material on the water cycle (books, magazines, books on tape, and articles).
  - Some books will include:
    - A Drop Around the World by Barbara Shaw McKinney
    - The Water Cycle by Helen Frost
    - Water Dance by Thomas Locker
    - Water, Water Everywhere (Discovery Readers’ Series): A Book About the Water Cycle by Melvin and Gilda Berger
    - Various articles from Discover Magazine, a publication for students about matters dealing with the subject of science.
    - The Water Cycle (Look, Listen, Learn) – Audio CD
  - After reading each book/article or listening to different audio books, students will be given a worksheet entitled, “I Did Not Think There Was Anything Else I Could Learn About the Water Cycle, until I Found Out That….”
    - Students will fill in the new information they learned from their readings/audio CD’s on this worksheet.
    - The aim will be to fill in the sheet by the end of the unit with additional information they have found through their readings.
• Anchor Activity #3: Read following scenario:

  o Source: The comic strip was taken from Tom Snyder's website:

  !Image 1

  Waiting for the subway, Mr. I.M. Richman slips and falls in a puddle of water.

  !Image 2

  Above him, he sees water dripping from some pipes. They must be leaking! I.M. Richman decides to sue Pip Peterson, the maker of the pipes.

  !Image 3

  Pip Peterson asks Science Court attorney Alison Krempel to defend her company. "Our pipes don't leak, Ms. Krempel!"

  !Image 4

  In Science Court, Alison Krempel calls an expert witness, meteorologist Maria Hernandez. "Water in the air condensed on the outside of the pipes and dripped onto the floor. The pipes weren't leaking," says Maria.

  !Image 5

  "Water in the air? Do you expect us to believe that there is water roaming around in the air?" asks Doug Savage, I.M. Richman's attorney.

  !Image 6

  Judge Stone and the Science Court jury must decide: Is Pip Peterson guilty of leaky pipes? Or could the water have come from the air?

• In box number six, Judge Stone and the jury are trying to decide on two decisions:
  o Is Pip Peterson guilty of leaky pipes?
  o Could the water have come from the air?
  o Make an educated decision based on your knowledge and research you find in books from “The Water Hole” in your classroom and information from internet sources.
